

Durham University & Queen's University Belfast Joint Symposium

We are delighted to announce a joint symposium co-ordinated between Queen's University Belfast and Durham University to explore the innovative uses of Generative AI in Teaching, Learning and Assessment being explored at both institutions. This event is open to all and will take place online on 11th September 2024 from 10:00-12:15. We have a number of short talks and discussions including talks from research project leads. Please see the agenda below.

Time	Title & Speaker
10:00am	Welcome, Prof. Sam Nolan, Durham University and Prof. Philip Hanna, Queens University Belfast
Session 1:	Approaches to Generative AI
10:10am	Embrace, Educate & Enhance our response to generative AI in HE: when do we start? Dr Mathilde Roger, Dept of Biosciences, Durham University
10:20am	Using Power Automate and OpenAI to dynamically respond to emails/query a document. Mr Andrew Goode, Engineering & Physical Sciences, Queen's University, Belfast.
10:30am	How our students use ChatGPT in writing in Modern Foreign Languages. Dr Aziza Zaher, School of Modern Languages and Culture, Durham University
10:40am	Student's acceptance of AI-augmented formative feedback. Dr Paddy O'Connor, School of Psychology, Queen's University Belfast.
10:50am	Panel Q&A/Discussion. Chair: Prof. Sam Nolan
11:05am	Break
Session 2:	AI Tuition
11:15am	Getting a chatbot to answer like a university tutor. Dr Ian O'Neill, School of Electronics, Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, Queen's University, Belfast.
11:25am	The Role of Custom AI Chatbots in Transforming Physics Lab Modules. Dr Arin Missouri, Dept of Physics, Durham University

11:35am	Next-Gen Student Support: AI as Both Advisor and Adversary in University Life. Ms Shelby Hanna & Mr Tom Dore, Engineering & Physical Sciences, Queen's University Belfast.
11:45am	'Chat GPT is my little helper': Understanding Student Experiences and Attitudes Towards Generative AI from an EDI Perspective. Dr Trevor James, Dept of Psychology, Durham University
11:55am	Panel Q&A/Discussion Chair: Prof Philip Hanna
12:10pm	Next Steps & Close

To register for the event please click here. This event is only open to staff at Durham and Queens – a list of participants will be shared between all those attending after the event to allow further research/scholarship collaborations to take place.