On-line access to the British National Formulary (BNF) has changed.

The BNF used to be accessed by going to www.bnf.org.

However, this has been discontinued by Pharmaceutical Press, the publisher of the BNF.

The BNF is now accessible via a platform called MedicinesComplete, also provided by Pharmaceutical Press.

To access the new online version of the BNF via HONNI:

→ Go to www.honni.qub.ac.uk. Click the HONNI Catalogue tab. Type BNF into the search box and click Search. Look for BNF via MedicinesComplete at or near the top of the results list, and click the Online Access link underneath it

OR

→ Go to www.honni.qub.ac.uk and click the link Databases A-Z. Click the British National Formulary link in the A-Z list

MedicinesComplete will open.

You may see a message saying you have been signed in to MedicinesComplete automatically, but you will still need to subscribe (i.e. register) separately to access the BNF.

You will need to subscribe even if you have previously registered with www.bnf.org.

Subscribing is free. Simply follow the instructions on the right.

If you have any questions, please email med.info@qub.ac.uk or contact your Subject Librarian.

To subscribe to the BNF via MedicinesComplete:

(1) Click Subscribe under British National Formulary

(2) Under NHS or Non-Commercial, click Choose Publications

(3) Tick British National Formulary and British National Formulary for Children, then scroll down and tick the two conditions boxes at the bottom of the page before clicking Proceed
